Identifying situations of CHILD ABUSE hit me again. And so it goes on. Day after day Emily is exposed to child abuse. Mark, her aunt's boyfriend, beats her every day. He also makes her do many chores around the house. It is okay to ask children to help with chores around the house, but Mark is making Emily do so many chores that she has to miss school and she does not have time to rest or play. This is not okay. Mark also treats Emily very differently to his own children. One sign of child abuse is when one child is being treated very differently to others in a household. Emily is very unhappy. In the evenings when she is making a bed for herself on the floor, she often wonders how her cousin is coping with their other aunt.

You lied to me.
I wanted money
to go to the casino. There was bread in the house. That is fine for you and Karen. I am eating out tonight with my friends. You don't need any other food.

And so Karen has witnessed yet another argument that has resulted in fighting. Monica has not been violent towards Karen, but it is still a form of child abuse to expose a child to physical, sexual or psychological violence towards someone else. Karen is so scared of her aunt that most nights she locks herself in her room crying and wishing that her parents were alive. In the evenings she often wonders how her cousin is coping with their other aunt.

It can be difficult for children to ask for help when they are in abusive situations. This is because children may find it difficult to tell an adult about the abuse. When a child does ask for help, if the adult does not want to listen, the child may not have the confidence to make other efforts to seek help. Jeff is experiencing domestic violence, and it can be hard for a victim of domestic violence to speak out. But he has a duty to look after Karen. He needs to get help for both himself and his niece.

Meanwhile, life is becoming unbearable for Emily. She has missed school for two weeks because of the beatings she has received from her aunt's boyfriend.

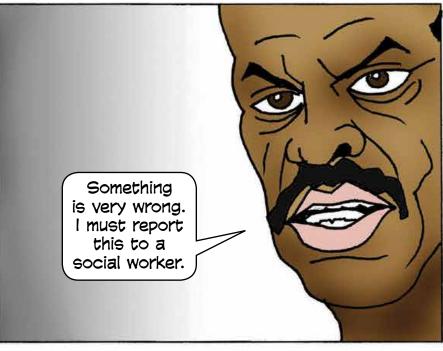

A mathematics teacher, Mr Klaazen, is very concerned about Emily. He cannot understand why she is not coming to school. He decides to visit Emily and her family at home.

Teachers see children on a day-to-day basis. Teachers are often the first people to notice when there is a problem in the home. It is helpful if teachers can follow up on any behaviour they think may be linked to child abuse.

I am glad that this problem was reported to me. I was able to place Emily and Karen with their grandmother in the village. She will give them all the love and attention they need.

WHAT IS CHILD ABUSE?

- 1. Child abuse is the mistreatment of a child. Children can be abused by people they know such as family members or people in the community, or by strangers.
- 2. There are many different types of abuse. These include physical, sexual, economic and psychological acts of violence.
- 3. When a child is abused by family members, this is domestic violence. It is also domestic violence if a child is allowed to see physical, sexual or psychological abuse against a family member.

WHAT TO DO IF YOU ARE A CHILD AND YOU ARE BEING ABUSED

- 1. Speak to a trusted adult or friend. This could be a family member, teacher or pastor.
- 2. Ask the adult or friend to help you contact a social worker, a Woman and Child Protection Unit or the police. You can also contact a social worker or police officer directly.
- 3. If you cannot find anyone to help you or if you are not sure what to do, you can call LifeLine/ChildLine free on 116. They can advise you.

WHAT TO DO IF YOU KNOW THAT A CHILD IS BEING ABUSED

Report the case to a social worker, a Woman and Child Protection Unit or the police.
