

Remarks by Ana-Beatriz Martins
Ambassador, EU Delegation to Namibia

Launch event

“Empowering the San: Legal Capacity building for Human Rights”

Legal Assistance Centre, Windhoek 15 November 2023

CHECK AGAINST DELIVERY

Honorable Mr Basilius Dyakugha, Ombudsman of Namibia

Hon. Ms. Gladice Pickering, Executive Director of the Ministry of Justice, and Member of the Board of Trustees of the Legal Assistance Center

Members of the diplomatic corps, Toni Hancox and Corinna van Wyk, LAC

Representatives of the Youth Sounding Board, Mrs Beverly C Silas-!Garas,

Ladies and Gentlemen,

Members of Civil Society and the media

Dear partners and friends,

I am pleased to see us all gathered here today for the launch of this very important three-year EU-project “Empowering the San: Legal Capacity building and Human Rights” which will be implemented by the Legal Assistance Centre, in close collaboration with other relevant stakeholders in Namibia.

This project will aim to contribute to the betterment of the situation of the San people, particularly with regards to enhancing their capacity to access their human rights. This can only be achieved through the support and collaboration of various stakeholders, including the San people themselves, the Office of the Prime Minister, the Office of the Ombudsman, and other government stakeholders, as well as Namibian citizens.

In the 33 years since Namibia’s independence, the San people have faced profound challenges – challenges that have been painstakingly documented in two comprehensive studies carried out by the Legal Assistance Centre and published in 2001 and 2014 respectively, as well as documented in further assessments. The challenges that San people face are multi-faceted. Let me name a few examples:

- Land Dispossession: The San people have historically been marginalized, with their ancestral lands often taken for conservation or commercial purposes, leaving them with limited access to their traditional territories.
- Discrimination: The San continue to experience discrimination and prejudice, limiting their access to education, healthcare, and employment opportunities.
- Socioeconomic Marginalization: Many San people live in poverty, lacking basic services and economic opportunities, which perpetuates a cycle of disadvantage and poverty. This reality is also evident in the mid-September Ombudsman's report, which revealed a severe malnutrition crisis in the Omaheke region mainly affecting San children, due to delayed food distribution, farm evictions, lack of information regarding vulnerability grants, unemployment, and generational poverty.

- Loss of Cultural Heritage: The preservation of their cultural heritage remains a concern, with ongoing threats to their traditional practices, languages, and way of life.
- Lack of Political Representation: The San community remains underrepresented in political and decision-making processes, which hinders their ability to advocate for their rights and needs.
- Limited Access to Education: Educational opportunities for San children are limited, contributing to lower literacy rates and reduced future prospects.
- Health Disparities: Health issues such as malnutrition and lack of access to healthcare services have been persistent challenges for the San community.

- As if all of the above were not enough, environmental pressures, changes in land use and climate impact the San communities' ability to sustain traditional livelihoods such as hunting and gathering.

Despite of the efforts that have been made to address some of these challenges, more work is needed to improve the human rights situation for the San population in Namibia and ensure their rights and dignity are upheld.

Ladies and Gentlemen,

With to the above outlined situation, we are pleased that this new EU-funded project will be implemented by the Legal Assistance Center, as they are uniquely positioned to complement social interventions by focusing on the rule of law in a democratic society founded on human rights. The extensive research undertaken by the Legal Assistance Center, have illuminated a stark reality: the collective living situation of the San has not improved significantly over the past decades, even if some communities have seen marginal progress.

These findings indicate that immense efforts are still required to improve the conditions of the San people and only through collaboration between all stakeholders we can bring about a positive change. The San people are right holders of human rights and constitutional rights. However, these enshrined constitutional rights do often not translate into actionable measures. Therefore, the duty bearers, who are responsible for upholding and delivering on human rights must act responsibly, ensuring that universal human rights are accessible to the entire population within a country's borders.

Therefore, the project's primary objective is to enable the San people to independently exercise their rights, and when needed, to ensure accountability among the right bearers. This empowerment will include capacitating the communities to claim their rights, strengthening their community structures and therefore enhancing their capacity for advocacy.

Ladies and Gentlemen,

The European Union (EU) is eager to strengthen indigenous peoples' rights, worldwide, which includes several key elements:

Promoting Indigenous Rights: We support the recognition and protection of indigenous peoples' rights, in line with international agreements such as the United Nations Declaration on the Rights of Indigenous Peoples (UNDRIP).

Inclusive Development: We advocate for inclusive and sustainable development in indigenous communities, aiming to ensure that they benefit from economic growth without compromising their cultural heritage or traditional way of life.

Participation and Consultation: We stress the importance of involving indigenous communities in decision-making processes that affect them, respecting their free, prior, and informed consent.

Cultural Preservation: The EU values the preservation of indigenous cultures, languages, and knowledge, and supports initiatives that promote cultural heritage.

Combating Discrimination: The EU works to combat discrimination and social exclusion faced by indigenous peoples, striving to create a more inclusive and equal society.

And finally, partnerships: We collaborate with indigenous organizations, civil society, and governments to implement policies and programs that strengthen indigenous rights.

Our support to indigenous rights reflect our commitment to upholding international human rights standards and promoting the well-being and empowerment of indigenous communities within and beyond our borders.

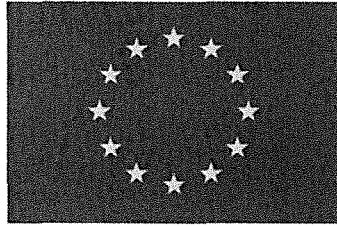

Dear Friends,

There still remains a lot of work to be done to contribute to equal opportunities for San people in Namibia. The EU is looking forward to contribute to Namibia's path in alleviating the inequalities between different populations. We hope that this project will contribute to improved equality and respect as well as engagement of San communities in spheres of public and private life, and ultimately towards more equality in Namibia.

We wish all parties involved the best of success in their fruitful collaborations. Without further ado, I would like to pass on to our guest of honour, Mr. Basilius Dyakugha, who can provide a more comprehensive overview of recent developments concerning the situation of the San people.

Thank you.

Remarks by Ana-Beatriz Martins
Ambassador, EU Delegation to Namibia

Launch event

“Empowering the San: Legal Capacity building for Human Rights”

Legal Assistance Centre, Windhoek 15 November 2023

CHECK AGAINST DELIVERY

Honorable Mr Basilius Dyakugha, Ombudsman of Namibia

Hon. Ms. Gladice Pickering, Executive Director of the Ministry of Justice, and Member of the Board of Trustees of the Legal Assistance Center

Members of the diplomatic corps, Toni Hancox and Corinna van Wyk, LAC

Representatives of the Youth Sounding Board, Mrs Beverly C Silas-!Garas,

Ladies and Gentlemen,

Members of Civil Society and the media

Dear partners and friends,

I am pleased to see us all gathered here today for the launch of this very important three-year EU-project “Empowering the San: Legal Capacity building and Human Rights” which will be implemented by the Legal Assistance Centre, in close collaboration with other relevant stakeholders in Namibia.

This project will aim to contribute to the betterment of the situation of the San people, particularly with regards to enhancing their capacity to access their human rights. This can only be achieved through the support and collaboration of various stakeholders, including the San people themselves, the Office of the Prime Minister, the Office of the Ombudsman, and other government stakeholders, as well as Namibian citizens.

In the 33 years since Namibia’s independence, the San people have faced profound challenges – challenges that have been painstakingly documented in two comprehensive studies carried out by the Legal Assistance Centre and published in 2001 and 2014 respectively, as well as documented in further assessments. The challenges that San people face are multi-faceted. Let me name a few examples:

- Land Dispossession: The San people have historically been marginalized, with their ancestral lands often taken for conservation or commercial purposes, leaving them with limited access to their traditional territories.
- Discrimination: The San continue to experience discrimination and prejudice, limiting their access to education, healthcare, and employment opportunities.
- Socioeconomic Marginalization: Many San people live in poverty, lacking basic services and economic opportunities, which perpetuates a cycle of disadvantage and poverty. This reality is also evident in the mid-September Ombudsman's report, which revealed a severe malnutrition crisis in the Omaheke region mainly affecting San children, due to delayed food distribution, farm evictions, lack of information regarding vulnerability grants, unemployment, and generational poverty.

- Loss of Cultural Heritage: The preservation of their cultural heritage remains a concern, with ongoing threats to their traditional practices, languages, and way of life.
- Lack of Political Representation: The San community remains underrepresented in political and decision-making processes, which hinders their ability to advocate for their rights and needs.
- Limited Access to Education: Educational opportunities for San children are limited, contributing to lower literacy rates and reduced future prospects.
- Health Disparities: Health issues such as malnutrition and lack of access to healthcare services have been persistent challenges for the San community.

- As if all of the above were not enough, environmental pressures, changes in land use and climate impact the San communities' ability to sustain traditional livelihoods such as hunting and gathering.

Despite of the efforts that have been made to address some of these challenges, more work is needed to improve the human rights situation for the San population in Namibia and ensure their rights and dignity are upheld.

Ladies and Gentlemen,

With to the above outlined situation, we are pleased that this new EU-funded project will be implemented by the Legal Assistance Center, as they are uniquely positioned to complement social interventions by focusing on the rule of law in a democratic society founded on human rights. The extensive research undertaken by the Legal Assistance Center, have illuminated a stark reality: the collective living situation of the San has not improved significantly over the past decades, even if some communities have seen marginal progress.

These findings indicate that immense efforts are still required to improve the conditions of the San people and only through collaboration between all stakeholders we can bring about a positive change. The San people are right holders of human rights and constitutional rights. However, these enshrined constitutional rights do often not translate into actionable measures. Therefore, the duty bearers, who are responsible for upholding and delivering on human rights must act responsibly, ensuring that universal human rights are accessible to the entire population within a country's borders.

Therefore, the project's primary objective is to enable the San people to independently exercise their rights, and when needed, to ensure accountability among the right bearers. This empowerment will include capacitating the communities to claim their rights, strengthening their community structures and therefore enhancing their capacity for advocacy.

Ladies and Gentlemen,

The European Union (EU) is eager to strengthen indigenous peoples' rights, worldwide, which includes several key elements:

Promoting Indigenous Rights: We support the recognition and protection of indigenous peoples' rights, in line with international agreements such as the United Nations Declaration on the Rights of Indigenous Peoples (UNDRIP).

Inclusive Development: We advocate for inclusive and sustainable development in indigenous communities, aiming to ensure that they benefit from economic growth without compromising their cultural heritage or traditional way of life.

Participation and Consultation: We stress the importance of involving indigenous communities in decision-making processes that affect them, respecting their free, prior, and informed consent.

Cultural Preservation: The EU values the preservation of indigenous cultures, languages, and knowledge, and supports initiatives that promote cultural heritage.

Combating Discrimination: The EU works to combat discrimination and social exclusion faced by indigenous peoples, striving to create a more inclusive and equal society.

And finally, partnerships: We collaborate with indigenous organizations, civil society, and governments to implement policies and programs that strengthen indigenous rights.

Our support to indigenous rights reflect our commitment to upholding international human rights standards and promoting the well-being and empowerment of indigenous communities within and beyond our borders.

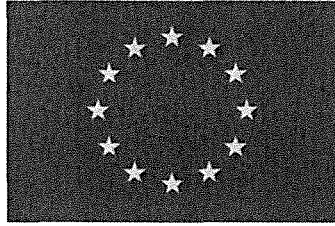

Dear Friends,

There still remains a lot of work to be done to contribute to equal opportunities for San people in Namibia. The EU is looking forward to contribute to Namibia's path in alleviating the inequalities between different populations. We hope that this project will contribute to improved equality and respect as well as engagement of San communities in spheres of public and private life, and ultimately towards more equality in Namibia.

We wish all parties involved the best of success in their fruitful collaborations. Without further ado, I would like to pass on to our guest of honour, Mr. Basilius Dyakugha, who can provide a more comprehensive overview of recent developments concerning the situation of the San people.

Thank you.

Remarks by Ana-Beatriz Martins
Ambassador, EU Delegation to Namibia

Launch event

“Empowering the San: Legal Capacity building for Human Rights”

Legal Assistance Centre, Windhoek 15 November 2023

CHECK AGAINST DELIVERY

Honorable Mr Basilius Dyakugha, Ombudsman of Namibia

Hon. Ms. Gladice Pickering, Executive Director of the Ministry of Justice, and Member of the Board of Trustees of the Legal Assistance Center

Members of the diplomatic corps, Toni Hancox and Corinna van Wyk, LAC

Representatives of the Youth Sounding Board, Mrs Beverly C Silas-!Garas,

Ladies and Gentlemen,

Members of Civil Society and the media

Dear partners and friends,

I am pleased to see us all gathered here today for the launch of this very important three-year EU-project “Empowering the San: Legal Capacity building and Human Rights” which will be implemented by the Legal Assistance Centre, in close collaboration with other relevant stakeholders in Namibia.

This project will aim to contribute to the betterment of the situation of the San people, particularly with regards to enhancing their capacity to access their human rights. This can only be achieved through the support and collaboration of various stakeholders, including the San people themselves, the Office of the Prime Minister, the Office of the Ombudsman, and other government stakeholders, as well as Namibian citizens.

In the 33 years since Namibia’s independence, the San people have faced profound challenges – challenges that have been painstakingly documented in two comprehensive studies carried out by the Legal Assistance Centre and published in 2001 and 2014 respectively, as well as documented in further assessments. The challenges that San people face are multi-faceted. Let me name a few examples:

- Land Dispossession: The San people have historically been marginalized, with their ancestral lands often taken for conservation or commercial purposes, leaving them with limited access to their traditional territories.
- Discrimination: The San continue to experience discrimination and prejudice, limiting their access to education, healthcare, and employment opportunities.
- Socioeconomic Marginalization: Many San people live in poverty, lacking basic services and economic opportunities, which perpetuates a cycle of disadvantage and poverty. This reality is also evident in the mid-September Ombudsman's report, which revealed a severe malnutrition crisis in the Omaheke region mainly affecting San children, due to delayed food distribution, farm evictions, lack of information regarding vulnerability grants, unemployment, and generational poverty.

- Loss of Cultural Heritage: The preservation of their cultural heritage remains a concern, with ongoing threats to their traditional practices, languages, and way of life.
- Lack of Political Representation: The San community remains underrepresented in political and decision-making processes, which hinders their ability to advocate for their rights and needs.
- Limited Access to Education: Educational opportunities for San children are limited, contributing to lower literacy rates and reduced future prospects.
- Health Disparities: Health issues such as malnutrition and lack of access to healthcare services have been persistent challenges for the San community.

- As if all of the above were not enough, environmental pressures, changes in land use and climate impact the San communities' ability to sustain traditional livelihoods such as hunting and gathering.

Despite of the efforts that have been made to address some of these challenges, more work is needed to improve the human rights situation for the San population in Namibia and ensure their rights and dignity are upheld.

Ladies and Gentlemen,

With to the above outlined situation, we are pleased that this new EU-funded project will be implemented by the Legal Assistance Center, as they are uniquely positioned to complement social interventions by focusing on the rule of law in a democratic society founded on human rights. The extensive research undertaken by the Legal Assistance Center, have illuminated a stark reality: the collective living situation of the San has not improved significantly over the past decades, even if some communities have seen marginal progress.

These findings indicate that immense efforts are still required to improve the conditions of the San people and only through collaboration between all stakeholders we can bring about a positive change. The San people are right holders of human rights and constitutional rights. However, these enshrined constitutional rights do often not translate into actionable measures. Therefore, the duty bearers, who are responsible for upholding and delivering on human rights must act responsibly, ensuring that universal human rights are accessible to the entire population within a country's borders.

Therefore, the project's primary objective is to enable the San people to independently exercise their rights, and when needed, to ensure accountability among the right bearers. This empowerment will include capacitating the communities to claim their rights, strengthening their community structures and therefore enhancing their capacity for advocacy.

Ladies and Gentlemen,

The European Union (EU) is eager to strengthen indigenous peoples' rights, worldwide, which includes several key elements:

Promoting Indigenous Rights: We support the recognition and protection of indigenous peoples' rights, in line with international agreements such as the United Nations Declaration on the Rights of Indigenous Peoples (UNDRIP).

Inclusive Development: We advocate for inclusive and sustainable development in indigenous communities, aiming to ensure that they benefit from economic growth without compromising their cultural heritage or traditional way of life.

Participation and Consultation: We stress the importance of involving indigenous communities in decision-making processes that affect them, respecting their free, prior, and informed consent.

Cultural Preservation: The EU values the preservation of indigenous cultures, languages, and knowledge, and supports initiatives that promote cultural heritage.

Combating Discrimination: The EU works to combat discrimination and social exclusion faced by indigenous peoples, striving to create a more inclusive and equal society.

And finally, partnerships: We collaborate with indigenous organizations, civil society, and governments to implement policies and programs that strengthen indigenous rights.

Our support to indigenous rights reflect our commitment to upholding international human rights standards and promoting the well-being and empowerment of indigenous communities within and beyond our borders.

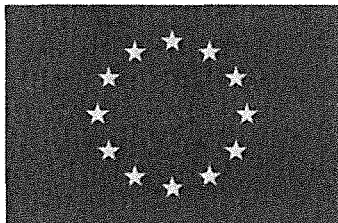

Dear Friends,

There still remains a lot of work to be done to contribute to equal opportunities for San people in Namibia. The EU is looking forward to contribute to Namibia's path in alleviating the inequalities between different populations. We hope that this project will contribute to improved equality and respect as well as engagement of San communities in spheres of public and private life, and ultimately towards more equality in Namibia.

We wish all parties involved the best of success in their fruitful collaborations. Without further ado, I would like to pass on to our guest of honour, Mr. Basilius Dyakugha, who can provide a more comprehensive overview of recent developments concerning the situation of the San people.

Thank you.

Remarks by Ana-Beatriz Martins
Ambassador, EU Delegation to Namibia

Launch event

“Empowering the San: Legal Capacity building for Human Rights”

Legal Assistance Centre, Windhoek 15 November 2023

CHECK AGAINST DELIVERY

Honorable Mr Basilius Dyakugha, Ombudsman of Namibia

Hon. Ms. Gladice Pickering, Executive Director of the Ministry of Justice, and Member of the Board of Trustees of the Legal Assistance Center

Members of the diplomatic corps, Toni Hancox and Corinna van Wyk, LAC

Representatives of the Youth Sounding Board, Mrs Beverly C Silas-!Garas,

Ladies and Gentlemen,

Members of Civil Society and the media

Dear partners and friends,

I am pleased to see us all gathered here today for the launch of this very important three-year EU-project “Empowering the San: Legal Capacity building and Human Rights” which will be implemented by the Legal Assistance Centre, in close collaboration with other relevant stakeholders in Namibia.

This project will aim to contribute to the betterment of the situation of the San people, particularly with regards to enhancing their capacity to access their human rights. This can only be achieved through the support and collaboration of various stakeholders, including the San people themselves, the Office of the Prime Minister, the Office of the Ombudsman, and other government stakeholders, as well as Namibian citizens.

In the 33 years since Namibia’s independence, the San people have faced profound challenges – challenges that have been painstakingly documented in two comprehensive studies carried out by the Legal Assistance Centre and published in 2001 and 2014 respectively, as well as documented in further assessments. The challenges that San people face are multi-faceted. Let me name a few examples:

- Land Dispossession: The San people have historically been marginalized, with their ancestral lands often taken for conservation or commercial purposes, leaving them with limited access to their traditional territories.
- Discrimination: The San continue to experience discrimination and prejudice, limiting their access to education, healthcare, and employment opportunities.
- Socioeconomic Marginalization: Many San people live in poverty, lacking basic services and economic opportunities, which perpetuates a cycle of disadvantage and poverty. This reality is also evident in the mid-September Ombudsman's report, which revealed a severe malnutrition crisis in the Omaheke region mainly affecting San children, due to delayed food distribution, farm evictions, lack of information regarding vulnerability grants, unemployment, and generational poverty.

- Loss of Cultural Heritage: The preservation of their cultural heritage remains a concern, with ongoing threats to their traditional practices, languages, and way of life.
- Lack of Political Representation: The San community remains underrepresented in political and decision-making processes, which hinders their ability to advocate for their rights and needs.
- Limited Access to Education: Educational opportunities for San children are limited, contributing to lower literacy rates and reduced future prospects.
- Health Disparities: Health issues such as malnutrition and lack of access to healthcare services have been persistent challenges for the San community.

- As if all of the above were not enough, environmental pressures, changes in land use and climate impact the San communities' ability to sustain traditional livelihoods such as hunting and gathering.

Despite of the efforts that have been made to address some of these challenges, more work is needed to improve the human rights situation for the San population in Namibia and ensure their rights and dignity are upheld.

Ladies and Gentlemen,

With to the above outlined situation, we are pleased that this new EU-funded project will be implemented by the Legal Assistance Center, as they are uniquely positioned to complement social interventions by focusing on the rule of law in a democratic society founded on human rights. The extensive research undertaken by the Legal Assistance Center, have illuminated a stark reality: the collective living situation of the San has not improved significantly over the past decades, even if some communities have seen marginal progress.

These findings indicate that immense efforts are still required to improve the conditions of the San people and only through collaboration between all stakeholders we can bring about a positive change. The San people are right holders of human rights and constitutional rights. However, these enshrined constitutional rights do often not translate into actionable measures. Therefore, the duty bearers, who are responsible for upholding and delivering on human rights must act responsibly, ensuring that universal human rights are accessible to the entire population within a country's borders.

Therefore, the project's primary objective is to enable the San people to independently exercise their rights, and when needed, to ensure accountability among the right bearers. This empowerment will include capacitating the communities to claim their rights, strengthening their community structures and therefore enhancing their capacity for advocacy.

Ladies and Gentlemen,

The European Union (EU) is eager to strengthen indigenous peoples' rights, worldwide, which includes several key elements:

Promoting Indigenous Rights: We support the recognition and protection of indigenous peoples' rights, in line with international agreements such as the United Nations Declaration on the Rights of Indigenous Peoples (UNDRIP).

Inclusive Development: We advocate for inclusive and sustainable development in indigenous communities, aiming to ensure that they benefit from economic growth without compromising their cultural heritage or traditional way of life.

Participation and Consultation: We stress the importance of involving indigenous communities in decision-making processes that affect them, respecting their free, prior, and informed consent.

Cultural Preservation: The EU values the preservation of indigenous cultures, languages, and knowledge, and supports initiatives that promote cultural heritage.

Combating Discrimination: The EU works to combat discrimination and social exclusion faced by indigenous peoples, striving to create a more inclusive and equal society.

And finally, partnerships: We collaborate with indigenous organizations, civil society, and governments to implement policies and programs that strengthen indigenous rights.

Our support to indigenous rights reflect our commitment to upholding international human rights standards and promoting the well-being and empowerment of indigenous communities within and beyond our borders.

Dear Friends,

There still remains a lot of work to be done to contribute to equal opportunities for San people in Namibia. The EU is looking forward to contribute to Namibia's path in alleviating the inequalities between different populations. We hope that this project will contribute to improved equality and respect as well as engagement of San communities in spheres of public and private life, and ultimately towards more equality in Namibia.

We wish all parties involved the best of success in their fruitful collaborations. Without further ado, I would like to pass on to our guest of honour, Mr. Basilius Dyakugha, who can provide a more comprehensive overview of recent developments concerning the situation of the San people.

Thank you.